SQUAW'S LONG VIGIL.

Watched Three Days Without Food or Water Over Dead Brave.

From the Los Angeles Times.

To remain for three days and two nights on the desert, keeping wind and fire beside her dead, was the pathetic lot of Ullala Boniface, whose brave was accidentally killed by the discharge of a shotgun. The accident occurred far out on the desert. Miners, attracted by the squaw's wailing, found her standing beside the body, her two small children asleep nearby.

A long ride was made to the nearest telephone point and Coroner C. D. Van Wile notified. The long, rough ride over the mountains and desert occupied three days and nights. At some stages it reached three hours to cover a mile, so steep were the grades, or so deep the desert sands.

Long before he arrived in sight of the squaw's wailing as she chanted the dirge of the Plutes was heard. In the gray of the morning the coroner reached the body. The sight of the woman standing erect at the foot of her dead brave, her black hair flying in the breeze, presented a dolorous picture, heightened by the chant of the dirge.

The squaw had broken all the brave's crutches against a tree, had flattened out his spoons and forks and other utensils on the rocks and had staked the two horses near the body, preparing to slay them over his grave. During the long vigil the woman had taken nourishment of no kind and would only eat after the body had been covered in the ground.

Wasteful England.

The sheer waste in this country is appalling. Our working men get less comfort and enjoyment out of a given expenditure than the workmen of France; the same is true of our middle classes as a whole; our local authorities muddle away money; our imperial concerns are extravagantly managed; our manufacturers throw money into the sewers or into the atmosphere and destroy more money in the process. It is not the comparative waste that strikes people who intelligently observe the ways of other nations. A very good defense may be set up for those refinements of life which collectively are termed luxury. But for waste there is absolutely no defense possible, and the real indictment against us as a nation is that we stupidly fail to obtain the luxury and the pleasure which our expenditure might procure.

ENGLISH SUFFRAGETTES SEE POLICE QUELL ROW

Chicago Strike Mob Is Dispersed Just as Visitors Are Leaving Hall.

CHICAGO, November 4.—Two English suffragettes who have taken part in a number of demonstrations of women in London watched the Chicago police quell a disturbance yesterday and admitted that their methods were even more effective than those of the London "hobblers."

The suffragettes were Misses Agnes Murphy and Almee Moore of London, and they accompanied Miss Gertrude Barnum and Miss Edith Phelps to address a meeting of strikers at the Hebrew Institute, West Division street, and Marion place. As the women were leaving the hall their attention was attracted by a crowd of strikers a block distant in front of a tailoring establishment.

Hurrying to the scene, the women arrived in time to see Policeman Olson, with a revolver in his left hand, landing a blow with his right on the jaw of a striker, which sent the man sprawling into the street.

"Such brutality," said one of the women, Miss Barnum was not sure that the blow was not justified, and she appealed to a bystander who had seen the entire proceeding. She was told that the striker had repeatedly tried to molest her, and that he practically defied the officer, who struck him.

Jumping up on the curb, Miss Barnum addressed the strikers. "Don't antagonize the police," she said. "Many of them are your friends, but they must do their duty. You must not use language or disturb the peace in any way. I'm sure the police are really your friends if you do right."

"That's right," said Policeman Olson. "I'm a union man myself, but no one is going to throw stones at that building while I am here. If that man had moved when I told him instead of 'sassing' me I would not have struck him."

Ministers Seek Other Callings.

From Leslie's.
A startling bit of religious news is the report that fifty-seven ministers of the upper Iowa Methodist conference, at its recent session, have felt compelled to withdraw from the ministry. The larger part of the number are young men, but a few years out of the seminary. They will seek other occupations, not from lack of devotion to their chosen calling, but simply and solely because the salaries paid are not sufficient to maintain a decent standard of living. While the cost of living has shot upward ministers' salaries, never large, have remained stationary, so that it is not surprising that these Iowa clergymen have found it impossible, on the pittance received, to educate their children properly, to keep themselves supplied with necessary books and to maintain the decent standard of living which all churches seem to expect of their ministers.

NO DECLINE IN COAL

Will Not Be Cheaper, Despite Heavy Shipments.

SO SAY LOCAL DEALERS

Railways Report Heavy Traffic for First Nine Months of 1910.

FAR AHEAD OF LAST YEAR

Eight Leading Eastern Roads Carried 10,296,754 Short Tons of Bituminous in September.

According to statistics furnished by the Department of Commerce and Labor, coal ought to be cheaper this year than last, if a decided increase in the amount of shipments over those of last year has anything to do with its price to the consumer.

Local coal dealers, however, were practically a unit today in declaring that coal will not be cheaper, even though the receipt of local anthracite and bituminous have been heavier than last year.

For the first nine months of the present year the coal traffic reported to the bureau of statistics, Department of Commerce and Labor, by the larger roads aggregated 88,523,247 short tons, or more than 17 per cent in excess of last year's figures. Reports for September from eight leading eastern coal-carrying roads indicated a total bituminous coal tonnage of 10,296,754 short tons, compared with 9,736,236 short tons carried during September, 1909, and 10,032,372 short tons carried during August of the present year.

The improvement over 1909 is said to be particularly noteworthy in the case of anthracite coal shipments, while the movement of bituminous coal shows only a normal growth, and the monthly production and shipment of coke shows small figures than last year. The volume of lake shipments of coal, mainly to northern territory, was far in excess of like shipments a year ago.

No Likelihood of Shortage.

Speaking this morning of conditions in the coal market, J. Maury Dove said he knew that coal would not be cheaper to the consumer during the coming winter. At the same time, he declared, there was no likelihood of a shortage. "Coal shipments were comparatively light earlier in the season," said Mr. Dove, "largely because the money market was tight and the dealers hesitated to purchase their supplies. But recently the shipments have been heavy, so that the dealers are well able to care for the increasing demand as the cold weather approaches."

"I think there is no likelihood of short prices for coal this year," said J. M. Burrell, president of the Allegheny Company. "The supply has been ample for the last few weeks, but, following the present cold snap, the demand will show a decided increase. I see no reason to fear a shortage in the market this year because the mines are working well and we should have no difficulty getting all the coal we desire."

A similar opinion was expressed by W. W. Griffith when he said: "The market is stronger and higher than it was at the corresponding season last year. A year ago the shippers had no difficulty in getting cars, and there were occasions when cars loaded with coal were in the local yards on demurrage. This year, however, all available cars have been in service steadily, and while the shipments have been heavier, there has been an almost equal increase in the demand. Our firm today has received more orders than can be filled by Monday, and the rush is likely to continue as the colder weather approaches. I see no reason to anticipate lower prices."

Guilty Conscience Yields $300.

NEW YORK, November 4.—The mails have brought to Collector Loeb an old black card case containing three one-hundred-dollar bills and an unsigned sheet of note paper bearing only the words "conscience money." The amount will be credited to the government's conscience fund.

The Play Censor.

From the London Chronicle.
You may not burlesque a statesman on the stage—That discovery was made by Sir W. S. Gilbert in 1873. Sir William had written a play entitled "The House of Commons," in which three of the leading politicians of the day—Gladstone, Ayrton and Lowe—were glorified the house-breakers' debris are the sudden opening of seed blown about in the year of the great fire captivated the fancy, if it does not appeal to the judgment. Although we may put on one side the table of the play's success, the success of Sir W. S. Gilbert, "was perpetrated in a quite good-natured spirit, and Gilbert is happy in the recollection of having seen Gladstone himself convulsed with laughter in the stalls as he followed his own adventures in fairyland."

Vitality of Seeds.

From the London Chronicle.
The tale of flowers in the Strand, now to disappear at the bidding of a French building syndicate, is accomplishing wonders in developing the imagination of our amateur botanists. The theory that some of the flowers now glorifying the house-breakers' debris are the sudden opening of seed blown about in the year of the great fire captivated the fancy, if it does not appeal to the judgment. Although we may put on one side the table of the play's success, the success of Sir W. S. Gilbert, "was perpetrated in a quite good-natured spirit, and Gilbert is happy in the recollection of having seen Gladstone himself convulsed with laughter in the stalls as he followed his own adventures in fairyland."

Burglars entered the post office at Chester, Me. early last morning and after cracking the safe made way with $35 in money and $200 in stamps.

Price of Ivory Increasing.

From the Music Trade Review.
Ivory continues to make rapid gains in cost and may sooner or later be in a class with gold. At the sales in Europe the tremendous demand pushes up the price. The allotment for each sale seems to be the same, and with a gaining consumption it is logical to expect a price advance.
